FRANCHISE IN LOCAL HANDS

M'CLOSKEY PREDICTS GREAT
FUTURE FOR TEAM.

The belated train from California last night brought in that infant prodigy dear to the hearts of all Salt Lake fans, who is known hereabouts and pretty much everywhere else in the world where they have ever seen a baseball, as "Buck" Weaver. Weaver came to Salt Lake the call of Manager McCloskey to take his place on the Salt Lake team and finish the season with the Elders. He left with McCloskey for the north about an hour after he got inside the city limits to join the team at Spokane. It is needless to say that Buck looks younger than ever, and as is pleased as a boy with a new wagon over getting back to Salt Lake. It has been reported around the city all summer that Weaver would not play with Salt Lake, much to the mortification of Buck, but it took him just two days to arrive here after McCloskey wired for him to come on. Weaver will probably be played at right field for the rest of the season and Weed will be shifted to the infield, according to the statement of McCloskey.

It is learned from McCloskey that he has transferred the Salt Lake franchise to local men, who will back the club for the rest of the season and then lay plans for next year for the biggest thing in baseball this town has ever had. McCloskey said it was for the best interest of the sport to not dilute the franchise by having a team backing the club at present, as all arrangements had not been completed. When he returns from his trip north it is thought he will be ready to tell about the future plans of the team. However, the flip is given out that the club is in proper hands and that Salt Lake fans do not in the least need to worry about the future of the game in the city.

There is likely to be some strengthening on the team this year in spite of the fact that there are but three weeks more in the season. Weaver, however, very strongly that there were a couple of Salt Lake favorites whom he thought he could get and that they would probably be found on the lineup before the season is over.
